DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

This house is located on the west slope of South Mountain, south of U. S. Route 40-A and north of Moser Road near Zittlestown in Washington County, Maryland.

It is a typical mountain house of wood construction two and a half stories high and three bays wide. It faces north. The house is built into a slope so that exposed fieldstone foundations at the front elevation are a full story in height. The upper part of the house is sheathed with asbestos shingles which may conceal log construction. A modern two bay addition extends to the east.

Windows have two over two pane sashes with plain early 20th century architraves. An entrance, trimmed similarly to the windows is located in the center bay of the front elevation at the main floor. Below it and offset slightly to the east is batten door into the ground story. A set of stairs at the ground level gives access to the upper porch near the front door.

The sheet metal roof extends beyond the end walls and a corbeled brick chimney is located inside the west end. A modern flue has been added along the east wall.

The house is in good condition.
